MISSOULA--

The University of Montana men's tennis team finished fifth out of six teams at this past weekend's Big Sky Conference tennis championships in Boise, Idaho.

The Grizzlies finished with 9 points. Idaho won its second straight tennis title with 38 points. Boise State was second with 34, followed by Weber State with 31, Montana State with 15, Montana with 9 and Idaho State with 8 points.

Boise State's Mike Megale captured the top singles title. Weber State players won the second and third singles titles, while Idaho players took four through six in singles and all three doubles titles.

Montana State downed UM 5-4 in Friday's match. Saul Chessin, Scott Selstad and Lou Silverman won singles matches while the doubles team of Chessin-Selstad won its doubles match.

Saturday, Weber State blanked the Griz 9-0, and Idaho State edged UM 5-4. Singles winners against Idaho State were Steve Stuebner, Scott Selstad and Lou Silverman. The doubles team of Silverman-Stuebner were also winners against Idaho State.

The Grizzlies were shutout by Boise State 9-0 and lost 8-1 against Idaho, Sunday. John Harris, playing number one singles, won by default over Steve Davis of Idaho.

The Grizzlies end the season with a round robin tournament in Bozeman this Friday and Saturday. UM, Montana State, Montana Tech, the Billings Racquet Club and independent teams from Missoula and Bozeman will play in the tournament.
